04-24 第1篇

中考英语完形填空：冬日的热可可

完形填空原文

It was a cold December afternoon. I walked home from school with my hands in my pockets, trying to 1 warm. The wind was blowing hard, and I could see my breath in the air.

As I passed by a small café, I noticed an elderly man sitting alone by the window. He had a cup in front of him and looked a little 2. Something made me stop and go inside.

"One hot chocolate, please," I said to the waiter. I paid for two cups 3 I only wanted one. "Could you give the extra one to that gentleman by the window?" I asked quietly.

The waiter smiled and nodded. A few minutes later, I sat at a table near the door, drinking my hot chocolate. It warmed my hands and my heart.

The old man looked up when the waiter brought him the second cup. He seemed 4. He turned around and saw me. I gave him a small wave. He walked over slowly and sat down beside me.

"Thank you, young friend," he said. "My daughter used to bring me hot chocolate on cold days. She moved to another city last year. I've felt 5 ever since."

We talked for almost an hour. He told me about his life, his work as a teacher, and his love for reading. I told him about my school and my dreams. When it was time to leave, he 6 my shoulder and said, "You've made my day. Kindness costs nothing but means everything."

Since that day, I have often 7 that café in winter. Sometimes I buy an extra cup for a stranger. The warmth of hot chocolate on a cold day can 8 more than just a drink — it can connect hearts.

That December afternoon taught me something 9: a small act of kindness can bring warmth to someone's day. You don't need to do something 10 to make a difference. Sometimes, a cup of hot chocolate is enough.
