中考英语完形填空：小区里的义工

完形填空原文

Every Saturday morning, a group of students from our community gather at the small garden near the gate. We are volunteers. Our job is to help clean the garden and 1 flowers for the elderly residents.

It all started when Mrs. Zhang, who lives in Building 3, fell and hurt her leg. She could no longer take care of her beloved garden. The flowers began to wither. Some neighbors 2 to help, but they were too busy. Then our science teacher, Mr. Wang, had an idea. "Why don't we form a student volunteer group?" he said.

At first, only five of us joined. We didn't know much about gardening, but we were willing to 3. Mr. Wang taught us how to water plants, remove weeds, and trim the branches. Week by week, the garden began to look better.

Mrs. Zhang sat on a bench and watched us work. Her eyes were full of gratitude. "You children have 4 hearts," she said. "This garden was my comfort when I was sad. Seeing it alive again makes me so happy." Her words made us feel that our work was meaningful.

More students joined our group. Now we have over twenty members. We not only take care of the garden but also help other 5 in the community. Some of us read to the blind Mr. Li. Others help carry groceries for Grandma Wang. Small acts, but they make a big difference.

One afternoon, a little girl from the community came to the garden. She said she wanted to be a volunteer 6. "My grandma said you make our community beautiful. I want to do that too," she said. We welcomed her warmly. It was wonderful to see that our actions had 7 others.

Being a volunteer has taught me many things. I learned that helping others doesn't require much — just time and a willing heart. I also learned that a community becomes 8 when people care for each other. We are not just neighbors; we are like a big family.

I will never forget the 9 on Mrs. Zhang's face when she saw her garden in bloom again. That smile was the best reward. If you have time, consider volunteering in your community. You might be 10 by how much joy it brings — not just to others, but to yourself.
