中考英语完形填空：雪地里的脚印

完形填空原文

It snowed heavily last January. By morning, the whole city was covered in a thick white blanket. Schools were closed, and most people stayed 1.

I was excited at first. No school! I could sleep in, play games, and eat snacks all day. But by noon, I was already 2. There was nothing to do.

I looked out the window and saw something strange. In the fresh snow covering our yard, there was a line of small footprints leading from the street to our back door. They were too small to be 3 — they looked like they belonged to an animal.

I put on my coat and boots and followed the footprints. They led me around the side of the house to the old wooden shed in the backyard. The door was slightly 4. I pushed it open and looked inside.

There, huddled in the corner on a pile of old newspapers, was a small grey cat. It was thin, dirty, and 5. When it saw me, it didn't run. It just looked at me with big green eyes, as if asking for help.

I ran back inside and told my mother. She brought out a bowl of warm milk and some leftover chicken. The cat ate 6 — it must have been starving for days.

"Can we keep it?" I asked.

My mother hesitated. "We'll take care of it for now," she said. "But we should try to find its 7."

We put up notices around the neighborhood and posted online, but nobody came forward. After two weeks, Mom finally said the words I had been 8 to hear: "I guess it's ours now."

I named the cat Snowball, because she came to us in a snowstorm. She quickly became part of the family. She slept on my bed, sat on my lap while I did homework, and always 9 me at the door when I came home from school.

That snow day changed my life in a way I never expected. I had been bored and lonely, and the snow 10 me a friend. Sometimes, the best things find you when you're not even looking.
