中考英语完形填空：海边捡贝壳的女孩

完形填空原文

Last summer, my family went to the seaside for a week. I had expected to spend the days swimming and playing games. But on the first morning, I woke up early and found myself walking alone on the beach.

The sand was soft under my feet. The waves made a gentle sound. I felt 1 for the first time in months. School had been stressful. I had been worrying about exams and grades. Here, there was nothing to worry about.

I noticed a girl about my age. She was bending down, picking up shells one by one. She put some in a bag and left others on the sand. I walked over and asked, "What are you looking for?"

She smiled. "Not looking for anything 2. I just like to see what the sea brings each day. Every morning is different. Yesterday I found a purple shell. Today, who knows?"

Her answer surprised me. I had always thought you needed a 3 when you did something. But she was just enjoying the moment. We walked together for a while. She showed me how to tell if a shell was still alive, and which ones were rare. I had never known the beach could be so interesting.

"We spend too much time 4 for results," she said. "Sometimes the best part is the journey — the walking, the looking, the wondering what we might find."

I thought about her words all day. She was right. I had been so focused on getting good grades that I had forgotten to enjoy learning. I had been so worried about the future that I had 5 the present.

The next morning, I joined her again. We didn't find any 6 shells, but we talked about our dreams, our schools, and our favorite books. It was one of the best conversations I had ever had. No phones, no plans — just two girls and the endless sea.

When we said goodbye at the end of the week, she gave me a small shell. "A 7 from the sea," she said. "Remember: sometimes the simplest moments are the ones we remember forever."

I still keep that shell on my desk. It reminds me that not everything in life needs a purpose. Some things are 8 just because they make us happy. The girl on the beach taught me to slow down and notice the small 9 — the color of a shell, the sound of waves, the warmth of a conversation. In a world that always asks "What's the point?", she showed me that the point can simply be to 10 — fully, gently, and with an open heart.
