中考英语完形填空：食堂阿姨的南瓜粥

完形填空原文

Last winter, I caught a bad cold and stayed in the dorm for three days. I had no appetite and could hardly eat anything. On the fourth morning, I finally went to the canteen. I stood in line, feeling weak and 1. When my turn came, I just pointed at a bowl of rice porridge. The canteen auntie looked at me and said, "You look pale. Are you feeling better?"

I nodded. She then took a smaller bowl and filled it with something different — warm pumpkin porridge. "This is 2 for your stomach," she said. "No charge. Eat it slowly." I was surprised. I hadn't asked for it. I didn't even know her name. But she had noticed that I was ill and had cared enough to 3 something special.

I sat down and took a spoonful. The porridge was sweet and soft. With each bite, I felt warmer — not just in my body, but in my heart. That simple bowl of pumpkin porridge 4 me that kindness doesn't need to be loud or grand. Sometimes it's just a warm bowl of porridge from someone who pays attention.

Since then, I've learned to pay attention too. When a classmate seems 5, I ask if they need help. When someone drops their books, I pick them up. Small acts of kindness may seem 6, but they can mean a lot to someone who is having a hard day.

I still go to that canteen. The pumpkin porridge is now a regular dish. Every time I see it, I remember that winter morning — the steam rising from the bowl, the auntie's gentle smile, and the 7 that a stranger can make you feel at home. I hope one day I can 8 that warmth to others, just as she did for me.

The canteen auntie doesn't know my name either. We never had a long conversation. But she taught me something important: in a busy world, taking a moment to notice and care can 9 a big difference. A bowl of pumpkin porridge is just a bowl of porridge. But given with kindness, it becomes a 10 of comfort that stays with you for a long time.
