中考英语完形填空：雨天的公交站

完形填空原文

It was a rainy Friday afternoon. I had missed the school bus and had to wait at the bus stop. The rain was heavy. I stood under the small roof, but my clothes were still getting wet. I felt cold and 1.

Then I noticed an old lady standing a few steps away. She had no umbrella and was getting wet. Without thinking, I moved closer and said, "Please share the space with me. It's 2 here." She looked surprised, then smiled and came over. We stood together under the small roof, trying to stay dry.

We started to 3. She told me she was going to visit her grandson. I told her about my school and the test I had the next week. The rain kept falling, but we didn't mind. It felt good to talk. When the bus finally came, she said, "Thank you for your kindness. You 4 a young man with a warm heart."

Her words stayed with me. I had only shared a little space. But she had made me feel that my small act 5 something. That rainy afternoon taught me a lesson: kindness doesn't need to be big. Sometimes it's just making room for someone else when you have very little 6 yourself.

Since then, I have tried to look for chances to help. When I see someone 7 help on the street, I offer it. When a classmate has no pen, I lend one. These small things take little effort, but they can 8 someone's day.

The bus stop is still there. I pass it every day. Every time I see it, I remember that rainy afternoon and the old lady's smile. Rainy days used to make me feel 9. Now they remind me that even on difficult days, we can still choose to be kind. And that choice can turn a cold, wet afternoon into a warm 10.
