中考英语完形填空：课间操的领操员

完形填空原文

Every morning at 9:30, the music would start and all students would run to the playground. It was time for our morning exercises. Standing in front of everyone was Zhang Lei, our class monitor. He was the one who 1 the exercises and we all followed him.

At first, Zhang Lei was very nervous. He often made small 2 when he moved. But he never gave up. He practised at home every evening so that he could do better the next day. His hard work 3 us all. Slowly, he became more confident and his movements became smooth.

One cold winter morning, Zhang Lei had a bad cold. The teacher asked him to rest, but he 4 to come. "The class needs me," he said. "If I don't show up, who will lead?" He stood in the front as usual, though his voice was a bit weak. We were all 5 by his sense of responsibility.

Through leading the morning exercises, Zhang Lei learned an important 6: being a leader means more than just standing in the front. It means setting a good example and never letting others down. He also made many friends because students often came to him for 7. He was always patient and willing to help.

Now Zhang Lei has graduated, but we still remember him. Every time we hear the morning exercise music, we think of the boy who stood in the front with a 8 on his face. He taught us that with confidence and practice, anyone can 9 a role in making things better. The playground and that memory will always 10 special to us.
