中考英语完形填空：实验室的显微镜

完形填空原文

The science lab was my favourite place at school. I loved going there every Friday afternoon for our biology class. What made me most excited was the microscope in the corner. Through it, we could see a whole new world that our eyes could not 1 alone.

Our teacher, Mr. Chen, taught us how to use the microscope. First, we had to 2 a small piece of onion skin on a glass slide. Then we added a drop of water and put another piece of glass on top. "Be careful," Mr. Chen said. "Don't press too 3, or you will break it." We all nodded and did our best.

When I looked through the microscope for the first time, I was 4. I could see tiny cells clearly! They looked like small boxes side by side. I had read about them in books, but seeing them with my own eyes was completely 5. "Science is not just in books," Mr. Chen said. "It is all around us, waiting to be discovered."

One day, my classmate Xiao Mei forgot to bring her slide. She looked 6. I offered to share mine with her. "We can take turns," I said. She smiled and thanked me. Working together made the lesson more 7. We discussed what we saw and learned from each other.

That microscope opened my eyes to the wonders of science. It taught me to be 8 and to look at things more carefully. Now I understand why scientists love their work—there is always something new to 9. I hope one day I can have my own microscope and 10 exploring the small world around us.
