中考英语完形填空：操场边的单杠

完形填空原文

Beside our school playground stands a set of simple bars — we call them the "monkey bars". When I first saw them in Grade 7, they looked 1 and boring. I never thought I would spend so much time there.

My PE teacher noticed that I was weak in arm strength. He said, "Try the bars. Start with hanging, then try to pull yourself up." At first, I could only 2 for a few seconds. My arms hurt and I wanted to give up. But my teacher kept 3 me. "One more try today. You will get stronger." I followed his advice and came to the bars every day after school.

Week after week, I felt the change. From five seconds to ten, from ten to twenty. One day, I finally pulled myself up once! I was so 4 that I shouted. My classmates who were playing basketball nearby came over and clapped. That moment made me 5 that hard work pays off.

The bars have taught me more than physical strength. They taught me about 6. Every time I fail, I get up and try again. The bars don't judge; they just wait for me to come back. Now when I face difficulties in study or life, I think of those bars. I remember the feeling when I 7 my first pull-up, and I tell myself to keep trying.

The monkey bars are still there, a bit 8 from rain and sun. But they stand strong, just like the spirit they have given us. I hope every student can find their own "bars" in life — something that pushes them to become 9. Because in the end, the bar we climb is not made of metal. It is made of our own 10 and belief.
