中考英语完形填空：音乐课的钢琴

完形填空原文

There is an old piano in the corner of our music room. When I first saw it, I thought it was too 1 and old to make beautiful sounds. But our music teacher, Ms. Wang, changed my mind. She sat down and played a simple song. The notes filled the room, and I felt something 2 inside my heart.

Ms. Wang said that anyone could learn to play if they practiced with 3. She encouraged me to try. At first, my fingers felt stiff and I hit the 4 keys many times. I wanted to give up. But Ms. Wang would sit beside me and say, "Every musician 5 this. Keep trying." Her words gave me the courage to continue.

Week after week, I practiced. The piano was no longer a strange 6. It became my friend. When I felt happy, I would play cheerful songs. When I felt sad, I would play soft music to 7 myself. Music became my way of expressing feelings that were hard to put into words.

One day, our class had a small performance. I was so nervous that my hands were shaking. But when I sat at the piano, I took a deep breath and began to play. To my 8, the music flowed naturally. My classmates clapped when I finished. At that moment, I understood that the best gift we can give to others is to share what we have learned and 9 with them.

Now the piano in our music room reminds me that nothing is impossible if we are 10 to learn and never give up. That old piano has taught me more than music—it has taught me about life.
