中考英语完形填空：火车上的意外友谊

完形填空原文

During the summer holiday, I took a train to visit my grandparents. The journey was long—about eight hours. I was traveling alone for the first time, and I felt a little 1 at the beginning. I brought a book to read, but soon I found it hard to 2 on the words. The train was crowded and noisy.

Then a girl about my age sat down next to me. She smiled and said hello. I smiled back. We started to talk. She was also going to visit her family in another city. We discovered that we both loved the same kind of music and the same books. Time 3 so fast when we were talking. Before I knew it, we had been friends for hours. She shared her snacks with me, and I shared mine with her. It felt like we had 4 each other for years.

When the train stopped at a station, we both got off to buy some water. There was a long 5 at the small shop. We waited together and continued our conversation. She told me about her dream of becoming a writer. I told her about my interest in painting. We encouraged each other to 6 our dreams. Her positive attitude made me feel much better about my trip.

At the end of the journey, we exchanged our phone numbers. We promised to keep in 7. Now, months later, we still send messages to each other every week. That train ride taught me an important 8: friendship can appear when we least expect it. We just need to be 9 to others and open our hearts. A stranger today might become a 10 friend tomorrow. I am thankful for that wonderful journey and the friend I met along the way.
