中考英语完形填空：端午节的粽子

完形填空原文

The Dragon Boat Festival is one of the most important traditional festivals in China. It falls on the fifth day of the fifth month of the lunar calendar. People celebrate it in many ways, and each family has its own customs.

One of the most 1 traditions is making zongzi. Zongzi is a kind of sticky rice dumpling wrapped in bamboo leaves. It can be sweet or salty, with different fillings like red beans or meat. Every year before the festival, my grandmother would 2 me how to make them. At first, I found it difficult to fold the leaves correctly, but with practice, I gradually 3 the skill. Now I can make zongzi by myself.

The story behind the festival is about Qu Yuan, a famous poet who loved his 4. When his country was in danger, he jumped into a river. People threw zongzi into the water to 5 fish from eating his body. Today, we still make zongzi to remember him and his spirit.

During the festival, dragon boat races are also 6 in many cities. Teams row their boats to the beat of drums. The 7 is exciting to watch. Last year, I went to see a race with my family. We cheered for our 8 team and felt very proud when they won first place.

The Dragon Boat Festival teaches us to remember our 9 and traditions. It brings families together and helps us 10 our cultural heritage. I love this festival very much, and I hope to pass these traditions on to the next generation.
