中考英语完形填空：生日惊喜

完形填空原文

My birthday was last Sunday. I thought it would be a normal day because my parents had to work and my best friends were busy. I planned to stay at home and watch some movies. Little did I know that my family and friends had prepared a big 1 for me.

That morning, my mum said she needed to go to the supermarket and asked me to wait at home. I felt a bit 2, but I agreed. An hour later, the doorbell rang. I opened the door and was shocked. There stood my classmates with a beautiful birthday cake! They shouted "Surprise!" and I could not believe my 3. They had been planning this for a whole week. My friend Emma had created a secret group chat to organize everything. They had even invited my cousin, who I had not seen for months.

We went into the living room. The room was decorated with balloons and colourful streamers. On the table there was a pile of 4 wrapped in pretty paper. I was so touched that my eyes got wet. I never thought so many people cared about me. We played games, sang songs, and had a lot of fun. When it was time to cut the cake, everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to me. I made a wish and blew out the 5. I wished that we could always stay good friends.

The best part was when my dad came home early from work. He had 6 to get leave so he could join us. He brought me a new basketball, which I had wanted for a long time. I hugged him and said thank you. My mum had made my favourite dishes for dinner. We all sat around the table and enjoyed the 7 together. It was the happiest birthday I had ever had.

That day taught me something important. Sometimes we feel 8, but we are often loved more than we realise. Our family and friends may not always say it, but they show their love through actions. I will never 9 this special surprise. From now on, I want to do the same for others—to make people feel loved and 10. That is the best gift we can give.
