参考范文

The Value of Volunteering

Last summer, I joined a volunteer group to visit a local nursing home. To be honest, I wasn't sure what to expect. I thought I was just going to help — but what happened that day changed the way I see the world.

We spent the morning chatting with the elderly residents, playing chess with them, and performing songs and short skits. One grandmother held my hand tightly and said, "You remind me of my granddaughter. Thank you for coming." Her eyes were red, and I suddenly realized that what these people needed most wasn't material help — it was company and warmth.

What I didn't expect was how much I received in return. I learned to slow down and really listen to someone's story. I felt a kind of happiness that I had never felt before — the happiness of being truly needed.

I now believe that volunteering is not charity — it's an exchange. When you give your time and kindness, you receive something money can't buy: the knowledge that you made someone's day a little brighter. We all have something to give, no matter how small.

全文翻译

志愿服务的价值

去年暑假，我加入了一个志愿者小组，去参观当地的一家养老院。说实话，我不知道会发生什么。我以为只是去帮帮忙——但那天发生的事改变了我看世界的方式。

我们上午陪老人们聊天、下棋，还给他们表演歌曲和小品。一位奶奶紧紧握住我的手说："你让我想起了我的孙女。谢谢你来。"她的眼眶红了，我突然意识到，这些老人最需要的不是物质帮助——是陪伴和温暖。

我没想到的是，我从中获得了那么多。我学会了放慢脚步，真正倾听别人的故事。我感受到了一种从未有过的快乐——被真正需要的快乐。

我现在相信，志愿服务不是施舍——它是一种交换。当你付出时间和善意时，你收获的是金钱买不到的东西：知道自己让某人的一天变得更加美好。我们每个人都有可以给予的东西，无论多么微小。
