04-08 第2篇

阅读理解（议论文）

① Cooking is an essential (必不可少的) life skill. However, many students today cannot cook even a simple meal. Some parents think that cooking takes up too much time and it is dangerous for kids to use knives or fire. They believe children should only focus on studying. I don't agree with them. I think every teenager should learn how to cook.

② To begin with, learning to cook helps teenagers become independent (独立的). Sooner or later, we will leave our parents and go to college or work in another city. If we only know how to eat food from restaurants or order takeaway (外卖), it will cost a lot of money and is not good for our health. Knowing how to cook means we can easily feed ourselves.

③ Furthermore, cooking is a fun and creative (有创造力的) activity. The kitchen is like a magic lab. When we put different vegetables, meat, and spices (香料) together, we can make delicious dishes. Cooking can help us relax after a long day of studying. We can also share our food with family and friends. This brings a lot of happiness.

注释： essential 必不可少的；independent 独立的；takeaway 外卖；appreciate 感激
