中考英语完形填空：第一次学下象棋

完形填空原文

My grandfather is a big fan of Chinese chess. Every weekend, he plays with his friends in the park. Last winter holiday, I asked him to teach me how to 1. He was very pleased and said, "I've been waiting for you to ask!"

Grandpa set up the chessboard on the dining table. He explained the rules one by one. Each piece has its own way of 2. The general can only move within a small area, while the horse can jump in an L-shape. I tried hard to remember everything, but there were so many 3 that I felt confused at first.

We played our first game that afternoon. Grandpa went easy on me and let me take back several bad 4. Even so, I lost quickly. I was a little disappointed, but Grandpa said, "Don't worry. Nobody wins on their first try. The key is to think before you 5."

Over the next few days, I played with Grandpa every afternoon. Each time, I lasted a little 6 before losing. I started to understand the importance of strategy—you have to think not only about your next move but also about what your 7 might do. It was like solving a puzzle in real time.

On the last day of the holiday, I almost beat Grandpa. He had to think very hard before each move. 8 I still lost in the end, Grandpa praised me for my improvement. "You have a good 9 for chess," he said with a big smile.

Now I understand why Grandpa loves this game so much. Chess teaches you patience, planning, and how to stay 10 under pressure. I plan to keep practicing so that one day I can finally win a game against him.
