中考英语完形填空：学编程入门

完形填空原文

During the winter holiday, I decided to learn something new. My cousin Tom is good at coding, so he 1 to teach me the basics. We started with a simple online course for beginners.

On the first day, I couldn't understand the symbols on the screen. Everything looked like a foreign 2. Tom explained slowly and drew pictures to help me. He told me not to worry 3 mistakes because even experts were beginners once.

We wrote a small program to print "Hello, world!" When it finally worked, I jumped up with 4. Then we tried a mini game: guessing a number. I had to think about 5 the computer should respond when the answer was wrong. It was like solving puzzles.

Sometimes the program didn't run. I felt 6 and wanted to quit. Tom taught me to read the error messages 7 and search for solutions. Step by step, I learned to fix bugs by myself.

After two weeks, I finished my first project—a digital clock. I showed it to my parents, and they were 8 surprised. This experience taught me that learning coding is not only about typing codes 9 about logical thinking and patience. I plan to join the school computer club 10 the new term starts.
