05-13 第2篇

阅读理解（议论文）

① These days, more and more students use e-books (电子书) to study and read for fun. Some people think e-books will soon replace (取代) paper books completely. But is that really going to happen? Let's look at both sides.

② E-books have many advantages. First, they are very convenient (方便的). You can carry thousands of books on one small device (设备), such as a tablet or a phone. Second, e-books are often cheaper than paper books, and some are even free to download. Third, e-books are better for the environment because they save paper and reduce the number of trees cut down every year.

③ However, paper books also have their own strengths. Many readers say they enjoy the feeling of holding a real book and turning the pages. Studies have shown that people often remember information better when they read it on paper. Also, reading on a screen for a long time can hurt your eyes, while paper books do not have this problem. For young children especially, paper books with colorful pictures are more attractive (吸引人的) and easier to share with family.

④ Another important point is that not everyone can afford electronic devices. In some areas, families do not have tablets or computers at home. Paper books can be borrowed from libraries for free, and they do not need electricity (电) or the Internet to work. This makes them more accessible (容易获得的) to everyone.

⑤ In my opinion, both e-books and paper books have their place in our lives. Instead of saying one is better than the other, we should use both according to our needs. E-books are great for traveling and quick reading, while paper books are perfect for deep study and the joy of turning real pages. The most important thing is not what form a book takes, but that we keep the habit of reading.
