06–13 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① Li Wei was a quiet boy in Grade 8. He seldom raised his hand in class and always sat at the back. When the teacher asked a question, his face would turn red and his heart would beat fast. He had many good ideas, but he was too shy to share them. His classmates thought he was quiet and a bit lonely.

② One day, Mr. Chen, the English teacher, came to him after class. "Li Wei, our school has a debate team. I think you would do well. You have a clear mind and good arguments. Will you try?" Li Wei was surprised. "Me? I can't speak in front of people." Mr. Chen smiled. "Everyone feels nervous at first. The debate team needs different voices. Yours could be one of them."

③ Li Wei joined the debate team. In the first practice, his hands were shaking and his voice was soft. He forgot what he wanted to say and stood there in silence. He wanted to leave. But his teammates did not laugh at him. They said, "We all started like this. Keep trying." So Li Wei stayed. He practiced at home in front of the mirror. He read more books to support his arguments. Week by week, he felt a little less nervous.

④ The big day came — the school debate competition. Li Wei's team was against the other class. When it was his turn to speak, he took a deep breath. He looked at his teammates and remembered their support. Then he spoke. His voice was clear and strong. He made his points one by one. When he finished, the audience clapped. His team won the first prize.

⑤ Li Wei is no longer the boy who hides at the back. He still feels a bit nervous sometimes, but he knows that confidence grows when we step out of our comfort zone. He has learned that trying new things can change who we are. Now he often raises his hand in class and helps new members of the debate team. He tells them, "If I can do it, you can too."

注释： debate 辩论；argument 论据；audience 观众；comfort zone 舒适区
