Learning Responsibility from a Stray Cat

① Last spring, Li Xiaofei found a small orange cat outside her school gate. The cat was thin and dirty. Its fur was matted, and it looked hungry. Li Xiaofei felt sorry for it. She decided to take it home. She was only in Grade 8 and had never cared for an animal before. She did not know that this little cat would change her life.

② At first, taking care of the cat was not easy. Li Xiaofei had to wake up early every morning to prepare food and water. She had to clean the cat's box and take the cat to the vet when it was sick. Sometimes she was so tired that she wanted to give up. "Why did I bring this trouble home?" she thought. But every time she saw the cat's bright eyes and heard its gentle meow, she knew she could not leave it alone.

③ Weeks passed. The cat grew stronger and healthier. Li Xiaofei's parents noticed a change in their daughter too. She used to leave her homework until the last minute. Now she finished it on time because she had to take care of the cat first. She used to forget to put away her things. Now she kept her room tidy so the cat would not get hurt. "The cat has taught you responsibility," her mother said with a smile.

④ One day, Li Xiaofei's friend asked her, "Why do you spend so much time on that cat? Don't you have better things to do?" Li Xiaofei thought for a moment and said, "Before I met this cat, I only thought about myself. Now I understand that when you promise to take care of something, you must keep your promise. That is responsibility."

⑤ Now the orange cat is part of Li Xiaofei's family. She has learned that responsibility means doing what you have promised, even when it is hard. She hopes that one day she can help more stray animals find a home. "Everyone can learn to be responsible," she says. "You just need something or someone to care for."

注释： stray 流浪的；matted 缠结的；vet 兽医；meow 喵（猫叫）
