① Should Smoking Be Banned in Public Places?

② Smoking in public places has become a hot topic in many countries. Some people think smokers have the right to smoke anywhere, while others believe smoking should be banned in public to protect everyone's health. Let us look at both sides of the argument.

⑤ Conclusion: In my opinion, smoking should be banned in most public places. The health of the public is more important than the freedom to smoke anywhere. Non-smokers, especially children, deserve to breathe clean air. Governments should pass laws to protect people from secondhand smoke. At the same time, we should help smokers quit by offering support and programs. A smoke-free environment benefits everyone in the end.

注释： secondhand smoke 二手烟；lung cancer 肺癌；quit 戒烟
