07-17 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① Li Wei, a Grade 8 student, never liked group projects. He thought he could do everything better alone. When his science teacher announced a model-building competition — teams of four had to build a bridge model in one week — Li Wei sighed. "I'll just do most of the work myself," he thought.

② On the first day, Li Wei cut the wood pieces alone while his teammates looked at the design. Soon he realized the pieces were too thick. His teammate Wang Na suggested using thinner wood for the middle. "I read that lighter materials work better for bridges," she said. Li Wei tried her idea, and it worked. He started to listen.

③ The next problem was connecting the parts. Zhang Kai was good at using glue and tools. He showed Li Wei a better way to join the pieces so they would not break. Meanwhile, Chen Yu drew a clear plan so everyone knew what to do next. For the first time, Li Wei felt that working together actually saved time.

⑤ Later, Li Wei said, "I used to think I was the best by working alone. Now I know that a team can achieve much more than one person. Everyone has something to offer." The model won second prize, but for Li Wei, the real prize was understanding the power of teamwork.
