阅读理解（议论文）

① Should Students Wash Their Own Clothes?

注释： laundry 洗衣服；independence 独立；transition 过渡；achievement 成就感；confident 自信的；damage 损坏
