A Small Game That Changed Everything

① Last summer holiday, Li Ming had two whole months free. His parents were busy at work, so he spent most of his time at home. One day, he saw a video online about making games with code. He thought, "Why not try it myself?"

② Li Ming had never learned programming before. He found some free lessons on the Internet and started from the beginning. The first week was difficult. He made many mistakes and felt like giving up. But when he saw his name appear on the screen after writing a few lines of code, he was excited and decided to keep going.

③ Every day he spent two or three hours learning. He learned about variables (变量), loops (循环) and how to make simple games. By the end of the fourth week, he had made a small game—a snake that eats food and grows longer. It was simple, but it worked! His younger sister loved it and played it for hours.

④ When the new term started, Li Ming showed his game to his computer teacher. The teacher was surprised and asked him to share his experience with the class. Li Ming felt proud. He realized that learning something new on your own is not impossible. You just need patience and practice.

⑤ Now Li Ming is learning more about programming. He dreams of making a bigger game one day. His holiday experience taught him that the best way to learn is to start and never stop trying.

注释： variable 变量；loop 循环
