08-14 第2篇

阅读理解（记叙文）

① It was a sunny afternoon in May. The students of Class 3 were having a PE lesson on the playground. They were practicing the long jump. Everyone was excited and taking turns to jump into the sand pit (沙坑). Li Wei, a tall boy who was good at sports, had just finished his turn and was walking back to the line.

② Suddenly, he heard a cry. "Ouch! My ankle (脚踝)!" Xiao Ming had landed badly and fallen to the ground. He was holding his left ankle with both hands, his face pale with pain. The PE teacher, Mr. Chen, was on the other side of the playground helping another group. He had not noticed what had happened yet.

③ Li Wei did not hesitate. He ran over to Xiao Ming at once. "Are you okay? Don't move. Let me help you." He knelt down beside his classmate and asked him to sit still. Then he waved to Mr. Chen to come over. While waiting, Li Wei spoke to Xiao Ming in a calm voice to comfort him. "It's going to be okay. The teacher is coming. Just breathe slowly."

④ When Mr. Chen arrived, he checked Xiao Ming's ankle and said it might be a sprain (扭伤). He asked two students to help carry Xiao Ming to the school clinic. Li Wei volunteered to go with them. At the clinic, the nurse gave Xiao Ming first aid. Li Wei stayed with him until the nurse said everything was fine.

⑤ Back on the playground, Mr. Chen gathered all the students. "I want to praise Li Wei today," he said. "When Xiao Ming got hurt, Li Wei was the first to help. He stayed calm, acted quickly, and took care of his classmate. That is what we need — students who care about others." Li Wei felt a little shy but also proud. Helping a friend in need had made the day meaningful.
