08-21 第2篇

阅读理解（议论文）

① In most Chinese middle schools, students are required to wear school uniforms (校服) every day. Some students enjoy wearing them, while others wish they could wear their own clothes. Should students wear school uniforms? This topic has been discussed for many years.

⑤ In my view, school uniforms are a good idea overall, but they can be improved. Schools could let students help design the uniforms so that they are more modern and comfortable. They could also allow students to wear casual (休闲的) clothes on certain days, such as Fridays. This way, students can follow the rules while still having some freedom to express who they are.
