参考范文

Last Friday our class held an English debate on whether paper books or e-books are better for middle school students. Two teams of four spoke, our English teacher acted as judge, and the rest of us listened carefully and voted in the end.

The side supporting paper books said turning real pages helps them focus and protects their eyes better in good light. They also mentioned sharing books with friends after finishing them. The other team argued that e-books are lighter to carry and cheaper to download, so students can read anywhere and adjust font size when words look small.

No team “lost” completely— both sides made sense. I learned to compare choices instead of labeling one side as wrong, and I feel more open-minded about reading now.

全文翻译

上周五我们班举办了一场英语辩论，讨论纸质书与电子书哪个更适合中学生。两队各四人发言，英语老师担任评委，其余同学认真聆听并在最后投票。

支持纸质书的一方说，翻动书页有助于专注，若在光线好的地方阅读也更护眼。他们还提到读完后可与朋友换书分享。另一方则认为电子书携带更轻便、下载更便宜，学生可以随时随地阅读，并在字显得太小时调整字号。

没有哪一方完全“失败”——双方都有道理。我学会了比较不同选择，而不是简单认定某一方错误，现在对阅读也更有开放的心态。
