中考英语完形填空：学做立体贺卡

完形填空原文

Next week is my best friend Chen Lin's birthday. I wanted to give her something 1, so I decided to make a pop-up card for her.

I watched a tutorial online and learned the basic steps. I needed colored paper, scissors, glue, and some markers. The most important thing was to be 2 with the cutting and folding.

First, I folded a large piece of blue paper in half. This would be the 3 of the card. Then I cut out some shapes from colored paper—a birthday cake, some balloons, and a big star. I planned to make them pop up when Chen Lin opened the card.

The tricky part was attaching the shapes 4 so they would stand up. I cut small strips of paper and folded them into "Z" shapes. Then I glued one end to the shape and the other end to the 5 of the card. When I opened it, the cake and balloons jumped out! It looked really cool.

I added some glitter around the balloons to make them look more 6. Then I wrote "Happy Birthday, Chen Lin!" on the front of the card. Inside, I wrote a short 7: "Thank you for always being there for me. I wish you a wonderful year ahead!"

It took me about two hours to finish the card. My fingers were covered in glue and tiny pieces of paper, but I didn't 8. I was proud of what I had created.

I put the card in a pretty envelope and hid it in my schoolbag. I can't wait to see Chen Lin's 9 when she opens it. I'm sure she will love this card because it's made with all my 10.
