中考英语完形填空：学做棉花糖

完形填空原文

At the school fair last Saturday, there was a cotton candy stand. The vendor showed us how to make this fluffy treat. I had eaten cotton candy many times but never made it 1. I decided to learn how.

The machine looked simple—a metal drum that spun quickly when turned on. The vendor poured sugar into the center. As the drum spun, the sugar melted and turned into thin threads. We had to 2 a stick and catch the sugar threads by moving it in a circle. The threads wrapped around the stick and grew into a big, fluffy ball.

I tried it under the vendor's guidance. At first, I moved too fast and the threads broke. The vendor said I needed to move 3 and steadily. I tried again and this time it worked. The pink cotton candy grew bigger and bigger. It looked like a cloud!

When it was ready, I took a bite. It melted in my mouth and tasted very 4. I made another one in blue flavor for my little sister. She was so 5 that she jumped up and down. We shared our cotton candy while walking around the fair.

Making cotton candy taught me that some things look magical but have a simple 6. The key is to understand the process and practice. I want to ask my parents if we can get a small cotton candy machine for home. Then I can make it for my friends when they 7 me. That would be a 8 way to share happiness. Simple pleasures sometimes bring the 9 joy. I will always 10 this sweet experience at the fair.
