中考英语完形填空：学做圣诞姜饼屋

完形填空原文

December is a time for festive activities. Our English teacher organized a cultural experience class and taught us how to make a gingerbread house. She said it is a 1 tradition in Western countries during the Christmas season.

First, she gave each group a set of pre-baked gingerbread pieces. There were walls, a roof, a door, and a chimney piece. She also prepared bowls of white icing, which would be used as the 2 to hold the pieces together. Each group received a bag of colorful candies for decoration.

My group started by building the walls. We spread icing along the 3 of each piece and pressed them together. We had to hold them still for a minute while the icing dried. This required 4 because if we let go too early, the walls would fall apart.

Next, we carefully placed the roof pieces on top. This was the trickiest part. The roof kept 5 off to one side. After several attempts, we finally got it to stay in place. We felt so relieved.

Then came the fun part—decoration. We used icing to draw windows and a door on the front wall. We pressed colorful candies onto the roof to look like 6. Someone in my group made a tiny snowman out of icing and placed it beside the front door. It looked adorable.

When all the groups finished, we put our gingerbread houses on a long table for 7. Each house was unique. Some were simple and neat, while others were covered in candies from top to bottom. Our teacher took photos and said she would share them with the whole school.

The best part was that we could 8 our gingerbread houses after the display. My group decided to share ours with other classmates. Everyone agreed that the gingerbread tasted 9 with the sweet icing and candies.

Making a gingerbread house was not just about food. It was about creativity, teamwork, and learning about another 10. I hope our school will have more activities like this.
