Why Breakfast Matters: Fuel for Your Day

Many people skip breakfast because they are in a hurry in the morning. They grab a snack later or wait until lunch to eat. But experts say that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. [1] That is because your body has gone many hours without food overnight. When you wake up, your brain and muscles need energy to work well. Eating a good breakfast helps you think clearly, focus better in class, and stay active. In fact, students who eat breakfast often do better in school than those who do not. So starting the day with a healthy meal sets you up for success.

What makes a healthy breakfast? [2] A balanced breakfast includes different types of food: some whole grains（全谷物）like oatmeal or whole-wheat bread, some protein like eggs or milk, and some fruit or vegetables. This mix gives your body the energy and nutrients it needs. Avoid eating only sweets or sugary drinks—they may give you a quick burst of energy, but you will feel tired soon after. In other words, the right combination of foods keeps you full and energised until lunch. It does not take long to prepare, and it makes a real difference to how you feel.

What happens if you skip breakfast? [3] Without breakfast, you may feel tired, irritable（易怒的）, or unable to concentrate. Your body has to use stored energy, and your blood sugar can drop, which affects your mood and performance. Some people who skip breakfast tend to overeat at lunch or snack on unhealthy food later. That is why skipping breakfast is not a good way to save time. In the long run, it can harm your health and your ability to learn. Eating breakfast is a simple habit that pays off every day.

How can busy people fit breakfast into their morning? [4] You can prepare things the night before—for example, cut up fruit, make overnight oats（隔夜燕麦）, or set the table. Keep simple foods on hand: bananas, yoghurt, nuts, and whole-grain cereal. Even a small breakfast is better than none. So with a little planning, breakfast can become part of your daily routine. Once you get into the habit, you will wonder how you ever started the day without it.

[5] In short, breakfast is essential for your body and mind. It gives you the energy to learn, play, and face the day. Whether you prefer a quick bowl of cereal or a more relaxed meal with your family, taking time for breakfast is one of the best choices you can make. Remember: you would not drive a car without fuel—do not start your day without breakfast either. So tomorrow morning, take a few minutes to eat something healthy. Your body and your grades will thank you.

- [1] A：
  - 线索：总领早餐对身体和学习的必要性。空前描述"Many people skip breakfast...But experts say that breakfast is the most important meal of the day"，空后说明"That is because your body has gone many hours without food overnight...When you wake up, your brain and muscles need energy to work well...Eating a good breakfast helps you think clearly, focus better in class...students who eat breakfast often do better in school"。A选项"That is because your body needs energy after a night without food"（那是因为经过一夜未进食，你的身体需要能量）中"That is because"解释早餐的重要性，"needs energy after a night without food"与空后gone many hours without food、brain and muscles need energy精准对应，衔接顺畅。
- [2] B：
  - 线索：健康早餐的食物搭配。空前设问"What makes a healthy breakfast?"，空后列举"A balanced breakfast includes...whole grains like oatmeal or whole-wheat bread, some protein like eggs or milk, and some fruit or vegetables...This mix gives your body the energy and nutrients it needs...Avoid eating only sweets or sugary drinks...the right combination of foods keeps you full and energised until lunch"。B选项"In other words, a balanced mix of foods gives you lasting energy"（换言之，均衡的食物搭配能为你提供持久的能量）中"In other words"概括空后内容，"balanced mix"与空后balanced breakfast、right combination完美呼应，"lasting energy"与keeps you full until lunch衔接自然。
- [3] C：
  - 线索：不吃早餐的负面影响。空前设问"What happens if you skip breakfast?"，空后详述"Without breakfast, you may feel tired, irritable, or unable to concentrate...Your body has to use stored energy, and your blood sugar can drop...Some people who skip breakfast tend to overeat at lunch or snack on unhealthy food later...skipping breakfast is not a good way to save time...it can harm your health and your ability to learn"。C选项"That is why skipping breakfast harms your body and mind"（因此不吃早餐会损害身体和心智）中"That is why"承接空前及空后结论，"harms your body and mind"与空后tired、irritable、affects mood and performance、harm your health精准对应，逻辑紧密。

- [4] D：
  - 线索：忙碌者如何安排早餐。空前设问"How can busy people fit breakfast into their morning?"，空后列举"You can prepare things the night before—cut up fruit, make overnight oats, or set the table...Keep simple foods on hand: bananas, yoghurt, nuts, and whole-grain cereal...Even a small breakfast is better than none...with a little planning, breakfast can become part of your daily routine"。D选项"It is true that a little planning makes breakfast easier to manage"（的确，一点规划就能让早餐更容易安排）中"It is true that"加强衔接，"little planning"与空后prepare the night before、keep simple foods on hand、planning完美呼应，衔接得当。
- [5] E：
  - 线索：全文收束与早餐的重要性总结。空[5]位于结尾段段首，空后总结"breakfast is essential for your body and mind...It gives you the energy to learn, play, and face the day...taking time for breakfast is one of the best choices you can make...you would not drive a car without fuel—do not start your day without breakfast either"。E选项"In conclusion, breakfast is vital for your health and performance"（总之，早餐对健康和表现至关重要）用"In conclusion"总结全文，"vital for your health and performance"与空后essential、energy to learn、best choices形成呼应，收束有力。
- 干扰项分析：
  - F. For example, some students eat breakfast in the school canteen.：涉及学生在学校食堂吃早餐，易被误填[2]或[4]。但F讨论的是具体就餐场所，而空[2]聚焦健康早餐的食物种类与搭配，空[4]强调准备步骤与时间管理；F属于场景举例，与空[2]的营养搭配、空[4]的规划方法论述层级不同。F属"主题相关但论述层级错位"型干扰。
