中考英语完形填空：毕业合影

完形填空原文

The day of our graduation photo finally arrived. For three years, we had studied, laughed, and grown up together in this classroom. Now we were about to 1 it for the last time as a whole class.

Our teacher, Mrs. Li, asked us to stand in rows according to our height. I stood in the second row, right next to my best friend Xiao Ming. He had been quiet all morning. "Are you okay?" I whispered. He nodded but didn't 2. I knew he would miss our class as much as I would.

The photographer adjusted his camera and asked us to smile. "Say cheese!" he shouted. We all laughed and smiled — some 3, some with tears in their eyes. The click of the camera captured that moment forever.

Looking at the photo later, I noticed something special. In the front row sat our class monitor, who had always been strict but fair. Next to her was the quiet girl who loved reading. In the back stood the boys who had won the basketball 4 last month. Every face in that photo told a story of our three years together.

We had shared so much — stressful exam weeks, exciting sports days, and silly jokes during breaks. We had argued sometimes, but we had also 5 each other through difficult times. The photo was not just a picture. It was a memory of our friendship and growth.

That evening, I put the photo on my desk. I knew that in a few months we would go to different high schools. We might not see each other 6 as before. But whenever I looked at this photo, I would remember the good times we had shared.

Graduation means saying goodbye, but it also means carrying forward the 7 we have learned and the friendships we have built. The photo will always remind me that no matter where life takes us, we were once a family in Class 3.

Years from now, when we look at this photo again, we will smile. We will remember the young people we were and the dreams we had. And perhaps we will 8 one another that the best days of our lives included each other.

So here's to our class — to every face in that photo, to every story behind each smile. May we all find success and happiness in our 9 journeys. And may we never forget that we once stood together, shoulder to shoulder, as one 10 class.
