中考英语完形填空：旧校服的故事

完形填空原文

Last month, our school asked students to donate old uniforms for children in mountain villages. I found my old school jacket in the back of my closet. It was too 1 for me now, but the memories it held were still fresh.

I remembered the first day I wore it. I was so nervous that I buttoned it wrong. My desk mate, Xiao Lin, noticed and helped me fix it 2 the teacher saw. We became good friends after that.

There was a small ink stain on the sleeve. It happened during a music class when we were learning to write music notes. I was so 3 that I knocked over the ink bottle. The stain never came out, but every time I saw it, I smiled.

I put the jacket in a bag and brought it to school. At the donation point, I saw many other students with their old uniforms. A teacher was 4 them. "These will mean a lot to the children," she said. "For some families, a school uniform is a luxury."

Her words made me think 5. I had always taken my uniforms for granted. I never thought about children who couldn't afford one. Perhaps my old jacket would help a boy or girl feel they 6 in at school.

I wrote a short note and put it in the pocket: "This jacket brought me good luck. I hope it brings you the same." I didn't know who would receive it, but I hoped they would feel a little warmth from a stranger.

A few weeks later, the school received thank-you letters from the village school. One letter was from a girl named Xiaomei. She wrote, "I got a jacket with an ink stain on the sleeve. There was a note in the pocket. Thank you for making me feel that someone 7." My heart warmed when I read it.

Sometimes we don't realize how much a small thing can 8. An old jacket that we no longer need might be a treasure to someone else. I learned that day that giving is not about how much we give, but about the 9 behind it.

My old school jacket is 10 now, but its story continues in a small village far away. And that makes me happy.
