中考英语完形填空：宠物店的相遇

完形填空原文

Every Saturday morning, I walk past a pet shop on my way to the library. I never planned to go in — I was 1 of dogs after being bitten as a child. But one rainy day, I had to step inside to escape the storm.

The shop was warm and quiet. In one corner, I saw a small dog with soft brown fur. It was sleeping in its basket. The owner said, "That's Buddy. He's been here for three months. No one wants him because he's too 2 — he doesn't run or play much."

I looked at Buddy. His eyes were gentle. Somehow, I wasn't afraid. I knelt down and slowly reached out my hand. Buddy opened his eyes, sniffed my fingers, and then gently licked them. My heart 3.

"The vet says he's healthy," the owner went on. "He's just shy. He needs someone patient."

I thought about my lonely weekends — studying alone, eating alone. Maybe we 4 each other. That afternoon, I went home and talked to my parents. To my surprise, they agreed. "If you're ready to take care of him," my mom said, "we'll support you."

A week later, Buddy came home with us. The first few days were difficult. He hid under the sofa and refused to eat. I sat on the floor for hours, 5 to him in a soft voice. I didn't rush him. Day by day, he began to trust me.

One evening, Buddy walked over and rested his head on my knee. It was the first time he had 6 me on his own. I almost cried. That small act meant everything.

Now Buddy follows me everywhere. He waits by the door when I come home from school. We take 9 together every evening. My fear of dogs is 7. Buddy didn't just find a home — he helped me overcome a fear I had carried for years.

Sometimes the best things in life come when we least 8 them. A rainy day, a shy dog, and a moment of 10 can change everything.
