05-21 第1篇

中考英语完形填空：钢琴比赛的前夕

完形填空原文

The night before the piano competition, I sat alone in my room, my fingers 1 over the keys. I had practiced for months, but now I could hardly remember a single 2. My hands were shaking, and my mind was full of 3. What if I made a mistake in front of hundreds of people? What if I let my teacher down?

Just then, my mother came in with a cup of 4 tea. She sat down beside me and said nothing for a long time. Finally, she began to tell me a story about her own 5 when she was young. She had once been too nervous to speak in class, but she learned that everyone feels afraid sometimes. "The 6 is not to avoid fear," she said, "but to move forward despite it."

Her words 7 me. I took a deep breath and placed my hands on the piano again. This time, I played slowly, 8 each note. The music filled the room, and gradually, my nervousness started to 9. I realized that I had done my best. Whatever happened the next day, I would be 10 of myself for trying.

The next morning, I walked onto the stage with a calm heart. I played my piece from beginning to end. Though I didn't win first prize, I won something better—the courage to face my fears.
