中考英语完形填空：晨跑途中的小狗

完形填空原文

I started morning running to prepare for the school sports meeting. Every day at 6 a.m., I would put on my sneakers and head to the park. It was 1 at first — I often wanted to give up and go back to bed.

One morning, as I was running along the path, I heard a weak sound. I stopped and found a small dog under a bench. It looked hungry and scared. I 2 down and touched its head gently. The dog didn't run away. Instead, it wagged its tail.

I had no food with me, so I ran home, got some bread and milk, and 3 back. The dog ate quickly. From that day on, it waited for me every morning at the same spot. We became friends. I would run first, and the dog would 4 me. Sometimes it ran ahead and looked back as if to say, "Hurry up!"

My morning runs were no longer boring. I had a reason to get up early. I even 5 faster because I didn't want to keep the dog waiting. A month later, I came second in the 800-meter race. My teacher asked, "What's your secret?" I smiled and thought of my little running 6.

One day, the dog wasn't there. I waited for twenty minutes. Finally, I saw a woman walking toward me with the dog on a leash. "Is this your dog?" she asked. "I found it lost in the street last week. I've been looking for its owner."

I explained how we had met. The woman said the dog had run away from its previous home because it was treated badly. She had decided to 7 it. "Would you like to visit him sometimes?" she asked.

"Of course!" I said. I was sad to say goodbye, but I was 8 that the dog had found a loving home. That little dog taught me something important: helping others can also help ourselves. Its friendship made me a 9 runner and a better person. Sometimes the best things in life come when we 10 expect them — like a stray dog on an early morning path.
