中考英语完形填空：黑板报的粉笔字

完形填空原文

Every month, our class would work on the class blackboard newspaper. It was a big task that needed everyone's 1. Li Ming was good at drawing, so he was in charge of the pictures. Wang Fang could write beautifully, so she 2 the main title. I was in charge of the words. At first, I thought my part was not important. "Anyone can write some words with chalk," I said to myself. But when I 3 to try drawing a simple sunflower, I found it was not easy at all. My lines were crooked and the flowers looked strange. I began to 4 how much skill it really took to make the blackboard look nice.

Our teacher often came to see our progress. She never 5 our mistakes directly. Instead, she would say, "This part could be even better if we try again." Her words made us want to do better. We would erase our work and start over, 6 we were satisfied.

The best part was when we finished. We stepped back and looked at our work together. The chalk words, the colorful drawings, and the careful layout — they all came from our 7. That moment taught me that small contributions 8 when we work as a team. A single chalk word may seem unimportant, but together we created something we could all be 9 of.

Now when I pass by the blackboard and see the monthly newspaper, I remember those afternoons. The chalk dust on our hands, the laughter, and the 10 of creating something together — these are the memories that make middle school life special.
