中考英语完形填空：运动会的接力棒

完形填空原文

The relay race was the most exciting event at our school sports meet. Four runners in each team would pass a baton from one to another. I was the second runner in our class team. The day before the race, we practised 1 in the playground. Our PE teacher told us that the most important thing was the handover. "The baton must never 2," he said. "If you drop it, you lose precious seconds."

On the day of the race, I stood in my position, watching our first runner come towards me. My hands were sweaty, and my heart was 3 fast. When I felt the baton in my hand, I ran as fast as I could. The wind rushed past my ears. I could hear my classmates 4 loudly. I focused only on reaching the next runner and passing the baton smoothly.

The moment I passed it to our third runner, I felt a sudden 5. I had done my part. Now it was up to my teammates to carry on. I stood by the track, watching them run. When our fourth runner crossed the 6 line first, we all jumped and cheered. We had won because we had worked together. No single runner could do it alone — we needed every 7 of the race.

That relay baton taught me something important. In life, we often have to pass things on — knowledge, hope, or responsibility. We receive from those before us and give to those 8 us. The baton is just a simple stick, but it stands for something bigger: the idea that we are all 9 in the same race that never really ends.

I still keep a photo of our team holding the baton together. Whenever I look at it, I remember that success is not only about running fast. It is about trusting others and being 10 when they trust you.
