中考英语完形填空：课间的毽子

完形填空原文

When the bell rings for the break, our classroom becomes noisy with laughter. Many classmates run to the playground, but I prefer to stay near the window. From there, I can see a group of students playing jianzi in the schoolyard. The colorful feather shuttlecock flies up and down in the air. It looks so 1 that I wish I could join them.

Last term, I never tried jianzi because I thought it was too 2 for me. I was afraid of failing in front of others. But one day, my friend Xiaoming came to me with a smile. "Come on, it's easy to learn," he said. "I will 3 you." So I walked to the playground with him. At first, I could only kick the shuttlecock once or twice before it 4. I felt a little disappointed. However, Xiaoming did not laugh at me. Instead, he showed me how to 5 my foot and keep balance. Day by day, I practiced during every break. Slowly, I could kick it five times, then ten times. The more I practiced, the more 6 I became.

Now jianzi is one of my favorite activities. It helps me relax after hard study. It also teaches me that we should never 7 ourselves before we try. Sometimes we think something is too difficult, but when we give it a 8, we may find it is not as hard as we imagined. The shuttlecock in the air reminds me that every small step can lead to great progress. I am 9 to my friend Xiaoming for his patience and kindness. Thanks to him, I have found both a new hobby and a valuable 10.
