中考英语完形填空：暑期读书计划

完形填空原文

At the start of summer, our English teacher gave us a reading challenge. She asked each student to read at least five books during the holiday and write a short 1 for each one. Some students thought it was too much work, but I was actually quite happy about it. I love reading.

I went to the city library the next day and 2 six books. I chose different types: two novels, one science book, one history book, one collection of poems, and one comic book. My mum looked at the pile on my desk and laughed. "Are you sure you can 3 all of these in two months?" she asked. I smiled and said, "Of course!"

I started with a novel called "The Secret Garden." The story was about a lonely girl who discovered a hidden garden and brought it back to 4. The more I read, the more I wanted to know what would happen next. I finished the whole book in just three days. Then I wrote my review, sharing what I liked most about the 5 and what lessons I learned from it.

The science book was a bit more 6. Some of the words were new to me and I had to use a dictionary. But the pictures and experiments inside were fascinating. I learned about how 7 work and why the sky is blue. It opened a whole new world for me.

By the end of July, I had finished all six books. I even added two more to my list because I could not 8 reading. My mum said reading had changed me. "You are more thoughtful and you express yourself much better now," she said.

When school started again, I handed in my reviews with great 9. The teacher read them and said she was very pleased. I realised that reading is not just homework — it is a 10 that can be enjoyed for a lifetime.
