中考英语完形填空：暑假支教

完形填空原文

Last summer, I joined a volunteering programme and went to a small village to teach. It was my first time being a "teacher". I was nervous but also excited. The village was in the mountains. The road was long and winding. When we finally arrived, I saw a small school with only three classrooms. The children were waiting for us at the gate. Their eyes were 1 and full of curiosity.

I was asked to teach English. The students had few learning materials. There was no projector or computer. We had to use a blackboard and chalk. But the children were very eager to learn. They listened 2 and raised their hands to answer questions. One boy named Xiao Qiang never missed a class. He walked an hour every day to get to school. "I want to learn English so I can see the world when I grow up," he told me.

The village had no library. The children had never seen so many books. When we brought some storybooks, they were overjoyed. They gathered around and looked at the pictures with 3. I read stories to them every afternoon. Their faces glowed when they heard about faraway places and interesting characters. I realised that education can open 4 for these children. It can help them dream bigger.

Life in the village was simple. We ate simple meals and slept in a small dormitory. There was no air conditioning. At night we could see the stars clearly. It was 5 from the city, but I had never felt so peaceful. The children's smiles and their "Thank you, teacher" made every day meaningful.

When the programme ended, we had to say goodbye. The children gave us handmade cards and flowers. Some of them cried. Xiao Qiang said, "Teacher, will you come back?" I promised I would 6 to visit. I gave him my email address so we could stay in touch.

That experience changed me. I used to take my education for granted. Now I understand how 7 it is. I also learned that helping others does not require much. Sometimes a little time and care can make a big 8. I plan to join the programme again next summer. I want to see how the children are doing. I want to tell them that they can achieve their dreams if they keep 9. The children in that village taught me as much as I taught them. They taught me about gratitude, hope, and the simple joy of 10.
