中考英语完形填空：校园义演

完形填空原文

Last Friday, our school held a charity performance. The money raised would help buy books for children in poor areas. Many students signed up to take part. I joined the dance group with my friends.

We had been practising for three weeks. Our dance was to a pop song that we all liked. At first, we could not move in the same 1. Some of us were faster, some slower. Our teacher said we needed to practise until we became one team. We met every afternoon after class and danced until our legs 2. Gradually, we learned to match each other's movements.

On the day of the performance, I woke up feeling nervous. What if I made a mistake in front of the whole school? My mother said, "Just do your best. The audience will 3 your effort." Her words helped me relax a little.

The hall was full of students and teachers. When our turn came, we walked onto the stage. The music started, and we began to dance. I tried to focus on every move and not think about the audience. Halfway through, I almost 4 a step, but I quickly caught myself and continued. Nobody seemed to notice.

When the music ended, the audience clapped loudly. We bowed and walked off the stage. I felt a wave of relief and 5. We had done it! Our teacher gave us a thumbs up from the side of the stage.

There were many other performances — singing, drama, and magic tricks. A boy from Grade 8 played the piano beautifully. A girl recited a poem about friendship. Everyone had worked hard to make the show a 6.

At the end, the headmaster announced that we had raised over five thousand yuan. He thanked all the participants and said that our school was 7 of us. I felt proud to have contributed something. The performance was not just about raising money — it was about working together and sharing our talents with others. It taught me that when we 8 our time and effort for a good cause, we can make a real difference. I hope our school will 9 more events like this. Every student has something to 10, and such activities help us discover our own strengths.
