中考英语完形填空：烘焙饼干

完形填空原文

Last Saturday, my cousin Amy came to visit us. She is two years older than me and loves cooking. She suggested that we bake chocolate chip cookies together. I had never baked before, but I was 1 to try.

First, we gathered all the ingredients: flour, butter, sugar, eggs, and chocolate chips. Amy showed me how to measure everything correctly. "Baking is like science," she said. "You must follow the 2 carefully, or the cookies will not turn out right."

We mixed the butter and sugar in a large bowl. Then we added the eggs one at a time. I stirred the mixture while Amy added the flour. The dough became thick and sticky. "Now we need to add the chocolate chips and 3 everything well," Amy said.

We used two spoons to place small balls of dough on the baking tray. Amy said we should leave some space between each cookie because they would 4 in the oven. I placed them too close at first, and Amy laughed. "They will stick together if we leave them like that!"

We put the tray into the preheated oven and set the timer for twelve minutes. While we waited, we washed the bowls and spoons. The kitchen soon smelled 5. I could not wait to taste the cookies.

When the timer rang, we took the tray out. The cookies looked golden and perfect. But Amy said we must let them cool for a few minutes. "If you eat them too soon, they will be too soft and might 6 you," she warned.

Finally, we could try them. The first bite was amazing — crispy on the outside and soft inside, with sweet chocolate in every bite. My little brother ran into the kitchen when he 7 the smell. He ate three cookies in a row and asked for more.

Amy said she would teach me how to bake banana bread next time. I am 8 that baking is not as hard as I thought. With a good recipe and a little patience, anyone can make delicious treats at home.

I wrapped some cookies in a nice box to 9 to my grandparents. They called the next day and said the cookies were the best they had ever tasted. That made me feel so 10.
