中考英语完形填空：学骑平衡车

完形填空原文

My neighbour's son has a hoverboard. I had seen him glide around the community on it and always wanted to try. Last month, my parents bought me one as a reward for my good grades. I was so 1 that I could not wait to start.

The hoverboard has two wheels and is powered by a battery. You stand on it with both feet and lean forward or backward to move. It sounds simple, but it is not. When I first stepped on it, I lost my 2 immediately and had to jump off. My father held my arm and said, "Take it easy. Nobody gets it on the first try."

I tried again. I stood still first and got used to the feeling under my feet. Then I leaned forward very slowly. The board moved! I was so surprised that I leaned back too quickly and almost fell. My father caught me. "Small movements," he reminded me. "Don't make 3 changes."

I practised in our living room for the first few days. There was more space and fewer things to bump into. Gradually, I learned to control the speed by adjusting how much I leaned. Going straight was easier than turning. To turn, I had to twist my feet slightly. At first, my turns were too sharp and I would 4 off the board.

After a week of practice, I could ride around the room without falling. My father said I was ready to try outdoors. We went to the pavement in front of our building. It was wider and smoother than the floor at home. I felt more 5 riding there.

I started to ride around the community. Some of my classmates saw me and wanted to try. I let them have a go, but I warned them to be careful. Not everyone could 6 it as quickly as I did. One friend fell on his first try and said his arm hurt a little. Safety always comes first.

My mother set some rules: I must wear a helmet, I cannot ride on busy roads, and I must not ride when it is dark. I agreed. These rules are there to 7 us. I do not want to get hurt or hurt others.

Riding the hoverboard has become part of my daily life. I sometimes ride it to the convenience store to buy snacks. It is faster than walking and more fun than taking the bus. My grandparents were amazed when they saw me. They said that when they were young, they had never seen such a 8.

I am grateful to my parents for this gift. Learning to ride has taught me that new skills need patience. I could not master it in one day, but with 9 effort, I got there. Now I can help other beginners too. It feels good to share what I have learned and see others succeed. That is the real 10 of learning.
