中考英语完形填空：学做手工皂

完形填空原文

My aunt loves making things by hand. Last summer she taught me how to make soap at home. I had never thought that soap could be made 1 a kitchen. She said we only needed a few simple ingredients: oils, lye, and water.

First, we had to be very careful. Lye can burn the skin, so we wore gloves and safety goggles. My aunt measured the lye and added it slowly to cold water. She told me never to add water to lye, only lye to water. "The order 2," she said. I watched carefully and took notes.

We used olive oil and coconut oil for our soap. My aunt said different oils give different benefits. Olive oil is gentle for the skin, and coconut oil makes the soap bubbly. We heated the oils in a pot until they were warm. Then we 3 the lye water into the oils and stirred slowly. The mixture had to be stirred for about twenty minutes until it became thick like pudding. My arm was tired, but I did not want to stop.

Next, we added some lavender essential oil for a nice 4. We could have added dried flowers or herbs too, but we kept it simple for the first time. We poured the mixture into a mould and covered it with a towel. The soap needed to "rest" for 24 to 48 hours before we could take it out.

Two days later, we removed the soap from the mould. It was soft and needed to 5 for another four to six weeks. My aunt said this waiting period was called "curing." During this time, the soap became harder and milder. Fresh soap right after making can be too strong for the skin.

When the soap was finally ready, I gave some to my friends. They all said it felt 6 on their skin and smelled wonderful. I felt proud that I had made something useful with my own hands. Making soap also made me think about what we buy. Many products in shops have chemicals we cannot 7. Making our own lets us choose natural ingredients.

I have made several batches of soap since then. Each time I try different scents: lemon, mint, or rose. My aunt says I am getting better. She says the 8 to good soap is patience — patience when stirring, patience when waiting. I agree. Good things take time. Maybe one day I will make soap as gifts for the whole 9. For now, I enjoy the quiet satisfaction of creating something 10 from simple materials.
