中考英语完形填空：中秋节团圆

完形填空原文

The Mid-Autumn Festival is one of the most important traditional holidays in China. It falls on the fifteenth day of the eighth lunar month, when the moon is at its 1 and brightest. For our family, it is a time for reunion and celebration.

This year, the festival fell on a Saturday, so my whole family could be 2. My grandparents came from the countryside, and my uncle's family drove from another city. The house was full of laughter and chatter. I had not seen my grandparents for three months, and I was overjoyed to 3 them again.

My grandmother spent the whole afternoon cooking a big dinner. She made many traditional dishes — braised fish for good luck, dumplings for reunion, and sweet rice balls for 4. I helped her wash the vegetables and set the table. The kitchen was filled with wonderful smells that made my mouth water.

When dinner was ready, we all sat around the big round table. In Chinese culture, a round table 5 togetherness and completeness. My grandfather raised his glass and said, "May our family always be healthy and together." Everyone clapped and repeated his words. It was a warm and touching moment.

After dinner, we went to the balcony to admire the moon. It was a clear night, and the moon looked like a huge silver plate hanging in the sky. My grandmother told us the legend of Chang'e, the moon goddess. I had heard the story many times, but I never got 6 of it. There was something magical about hearing it under the bright moonlight.

Of course, we also ate mooncakes. My mother had bought several boxes with different 7 — red bean, lotus seed paste, egg yolk, and my favourite, pineapple. I bit into a pineapple mooncake and smiled. It was sweet but not too heavy.

The best part of the evening was when we played a game. My uncle suggested that each person should recite a poem or say a sentence about the 8. My grandfather recited a famous poem by Su Shi: "May we all be blessed with longevity, though we are miles apart, we can share the beauty of the moon." His deep voice made the words sound even more 9.

As the night grew late, I looked at my family around me and felt truly grateful. In our busy modern lives, it is rare for everyone to be together. The Mid-Autumn Festival reminds us of what matters most — not money, not success, but the 10 of those we love.
