中考英语完形填空：周末骑行

完形填空原文

Last weekend, my father suggested that we go cycling together. He said it would be a good way to exercise and enjoy the autumn weather. I 1 agreed because I had been sitting at my desk studying all week and needed some fresh air.

We set off early on Saturday morning. My father had planned a route along the river. The road was flat and smooth, 2 for cycling. The morning air was cool, and the sun was just rising above the trees. Birds were singing, and the river sparkled in the golden light. It was a beautiful 3.

At first, we rode side by side and chatted. My father told me about his childhood, when he used to cycle to school every day. "It was ten kilometres each way," he said. "In winter, the road was icy and I had to ride very 4. But I never complained." I admired his determination.

After about an hour, we reached a small village. There was a market selling fresh fruits and vegetables. We stopped to rest and bought some oranges. The oranges were 5 and sweet — much better than the ones in the supermarket. An old farmer told us they had been picked that very morning.

We continued riding after the break. The road became hillier, and I started to feel tired. My legs ached and I was breathing 6. I wanted to stop, but my father encouraged me. "Just a little further. There's a wonderful view at the top of the hill," he said. I trusted him and kept pedalling.

When we finally reached the top, I understood why he had pushed me. Below us was a vast field of sunflowers, stretching as far as the eye could see. The bright yellow flowers swayed gently in the 7. It was one of the most spectacular sights I had ever seen. I took out my phone and snapped several photos.

We sat on a bench and drank water while admiring the view. My father put his arm around my shoulder and said, "Life is like cycling. Sometimes the road is easy, and sometimes it goes uphill. But if you keep going, you will always find something 8 waiting for you." His words stuck in my mind.

On the way home, the wind was at our backs, and riding was much 9. We arrived home tired but happy. My mother had prepared a warm lunch for us. As I ate, I thought about what a perfect day it had been.

That cycling trip taught me two things: first, spending time with family is 10; second, the best rewards often come after the hardest efforts.
