完形填空原文

Last Saturday morning, Mrs. Chen from next door knocked on our door. She had to go to the hospital to see her sick mother and needed 1 to look after her dog, Doudou. I volunteered to help because I had always wanted to have a dog of my own.

I took Doudou for a walk in the park. At first, he was a bit nervous and pulled on the leash. I spoke to him 2 and patted his head. Soon he became calm and started to enjoy the walk. We walked along the path, and Doudou stopped to smell the flowers and trees. It was a 3 experience for me.

When we got to a big lawn, I decided to let Doudou run freely for a while. I 4 the leash and he ran around happily. Other dog owners were also there with their pets. Doudou made friends with a small white dog. They played 5 for about fifteen minutes. I felt so happy watching them.

On our way back, Doudou suddenly stopped. He was looking at something on the ground. I went closer and found a lost wallet. I picked it up and saw an ID card inside. I 6 to take it to the police station. The police officer thanked me and said he would try to find the owner. Helping others made me feel 7.

When Mrs. Chen returned in the evening, she was very grateful. She gave me a box of cookies as a thank-you 8. I told her that I enjoyed spending time with Doudou and would be glad to help again. From this experience, I learned that helping neighbors could not only make them happy but also 9 our own lives. Sometimes the best things in life come from simple 10 of kindness.
