中考英语完形填空：制作手工贺卡送朋友

完形填空原文

My best friend Xiao Mei's birthday was coming. I wanted to give her something special — not just a bought gift, but something made with my own hands. I decided to make a handmade card for her.

I went to a craft store and bought some colourful paper, glue, scissors, and a few other 1. I had never made a card before, so I searched online for some ideas. I found a beautiful design with folded paper flowers and decided to try it.

That weekend, I sat at my desk and started working. First, I cut the paper into small squares and folded each one into a petal shape. It took me a long time because I had to be very 2 — one wrong fold and the flower would look messy. Then I glued the petals together to form a flower. I made three flowers in different colours: pink, yellow and blue.

Next, I folded a piece of red cardstock in half to make the card base. I arranged the paper flowers on the front and stuck them down. I also drew a small butterfly 3 the flowers. At the top, I wrote "Happy Birthday, Xiao Mei!" in my best handwriting.

Inside the card, I wrote a personal message. I told her how grateful I was for her friendship and how much she meant to me. I 4 several times before I finally got the words right. I wanted every word to be perfect.

On the day of her birthday, I gave her the card. When she opened it, her eyes lit up. "You made this yourself? It's so 5!" she exclaimed. She hugged me tightly and said it was the best birthday gift she had ever received. Her 6 made all my effort worthwhile.

Making that card taught me something important. A handmade gift may not cost much money, but it carries our heart and time. It shows the receiver that we 7 about them. Sometimes the best gifts are not the most expensive ones, but the ones made with love.

I have made more handmade cards since then — for Teachers' Day, for Mother's Day, and for friends who moved away. Each card is 8, and each one carries my sincere wishes. I enjoy the process of creating something with my hands. It brings me a sense of 9 and joy.

If you want to show someone you care, try making a card for them. You might be 10 at how much they appreciate it.
