中考英语完形填空：学校义卖捐款

完形填空原文

Our school organized a charity sale last month to raise money for children in poor mountainous areas. The event was planned by our student union and supported by all the teachers. Every class was asked to set up a stall and sell things.

Our class decided to sell handmade crafts and used books. We spent a week 1 items. Some students made paper flowers and bookmarks. Others brought books they had read and didn't need anymore. I contributed a few storybooks and a toy that I had 2 when I was younger.

On the day of the sale, the playground was full of stalls and people. Each stall had a sign showing its class number. Our stall was decorated with colourful balloons and posters. We had 3 everything neatly on the table. When the sale started, many students and teachers came to look.

"Come and have a look! All for a good cause!" we shouted. A teacher bought three paper flowers. A younger student picked a storybook and paid with his pocket money. We felt very 4 when we made each sale, because we knew the money would go to children who needed it.

By noon, we had sold most of our items. Our class had raised over 500 yuan. The headteacher made a speech. She said that our school had raised a total of 15,000 yuan this year. The money would be used to buy books and school supplies for children in a village school in the west of China.

She also thanked everyone for their 5 and kindness. "Every small act of kindness matters," she said. "When we help others, we also make ourselves happier."

This charity sale was a meaningful 6. It taught me that we don't need to be rich to help others. We can contribute in our own way — by giving our time, our skills, or things we no longer need. What 7 is that we have a willing heart.

I hope our school will hold more such activities in the future. I will definitely take part again. Helping others gives me a warm feeling 8. It reminds me that we are all connected and that we can make the world a better place together.

If you have a chance to join a charity activity, don't 9 it. You might find that giving is more rewarding than receiving. The smiles of those we help are the best 10 we can get.
